Many leads are lost at a point nobody talks about: the handoff between marketing and sales.

Swipe for the breakdown →

01

Every lead gets an owner the moment it arrives

02

Every stage has a written definition, so "follow up" means the same thing to everyone

03

A lead sitting too long in one stage is flagged, not forgotten

04

Lost leads need a reason, so marketing learns which ads bring the wrong people

“

Ads can only buy attention. The pipeline decides whether that attention becomes revenue.

Who owns the handoff in your business?

Want me to review your lead flow?

Comment AUDIT or send a DM. The audit is free.